- Public and private online forums and discussion boards
- Any other online technologies that allow individual users to upload and share content.

3.2 This policy is applicable when using social media as:

1. an officially designated individual representing Royal Life Saving Society - Australia on social media; and
2. if you are posting content on social media in relation to Royal Life Saving Society - Australia that might affect Royal Life Saving Society - Australia's business, products, services, events, sponsors, members or reputation.

NOTE: This policy does not apply to the personal use of social media where it is not related to or there is no reference to Royal Life Saving Society - Australia or its business, competitions, teams, participants, products, services, events, sponsors, members or reputation. However, any misuse by you of social media in a manner that does not directly refer to Royal Life Saving Society - Australia may still be regulated by other policies, rules or regulations of Royal Life Saving Society - Australia.

4. GUIDELINES

You must adhere to the following guidelines when using social media related to Royal Life Saving Society - Australia or its business, products, competitions, teams, participants, services, events, sponsors, members or reputation.

4.1 Using social media in an official capacity

You must be authorised by the National Manager Events & Marketing before engaging in social media as a representative of Royal Life Saving Society - Australia.

As a part of Royal Life Saving Society - Australia's, community you are an extension of the Royal Life Saving Society - Australia brand.

As such, the boundaries between when you are representing yourself and when you are representing Royal Life Saving Society - Australia can often be blurred. This becomes even more of an issue as you increase your profile or position within Royal Life Saving Society - Australia. Therefore it is important that you represent both yourself and Royal Life Saving Society - Australia appropriately online at all times.

4.2 Use common sense

Whenever you are unsure as to whether or not the content you wish to share is appropriate, seek advice from others before doing so or refrain from sharing the content to be on the safe side.

When using social media, the lines between public and private, personal and professional, may be blurred. Remember, you are an ambassador for Royal Life Saving Society - Australia.

4.3 Protecting your privacy

Be smart about protecting yourself and your privacy.

When posting content online there is potential for that content to become publicly available through a variety of means, even if it was intended to be shared privately. Therefore, you should refrain from posting any content online that you would not be happy for anyone to see, even if you feel confident that a particular individual would never see it.

Where possible, privacy settings on social media platforms should be set to limit access. You should also be cautious about disclosing your personal details.

4.4 Honesty

Your honesty—or dishonesty—may be quickly noticed in the social media environment. Do not say anything that is dishonest, untrue or misleading. If you are unsure, check the source and the facts before uploading or posting anything. Royal Life Saving Society - Australia recommends erring on the side of caution – if in doubt, do not post or upload.

Do not post anonymously, using pseudonyms or false screen names. Be transparent and honest. Use your real name, be clear about who you are and identify any affiliations you have.

If you have a vested interest in something you are discussing, point it out. If you make an endorsement or recommendation about something you are affiliated with, or have a close relationship with, you must disclose that affiliation.

The web is not anonymous. You should assume that all information posted online can be traced back to you. You are accountable for your actions both on and offline, including the information you post via your personal social media accounts.

4.5 Use of disclaimers

Wherever practical, include a prominent disclaimer stating who you work for or are affiliated with (e.g. member of Royal Life Saving Society - Australia) and that anything you publish is your personal opinion and that you are not speaking officially. This is good practice and is encouraged, but don't count on it to avoid trouble — it may not have legal effect.

4.6 Reasonable Use

If you are an employee of Royal Life Saving Society - Australia, you must ensure that your personal use of social media does not interfere with your work commitments or productivity.

4.7 Respect confidentiality and sensitivity

When using social media, you must maintain the privacy of Royal Life Saving Society - Australia's confidential information. This includes information that is not publicly accessible, widely known, or not expected to be shared outside of Royal Life Saving Society - Australia.

Remember, if you are online, you are on the record—much of the content posted online is public and searchable.

Within the scope of your authorisation by Royal Life Saving Society - Australia, it is perfectly acceptable to talk about Royal Life Saving Society - Australia and have a dialogue with the community, but it is not okay to publish confidential information of Royal Life Saving Society - Australia. Confidential information includes things such as details about litigation, unreleased product information and unpublished details about decisions: e.g. team selections.

When using social media you should be considerate to others and should not post information when you have been asked not to, or where consent has not been sought and given. You must also remove information about another person if that person asks you to do so.

Permission should always be sought if the use or publication of information is not incidental, but directly related to an individual. This is particularly relevant to publishing any information regarding minors. In such circumstances, parental or guardian consent is mandatory.

4.8 Gaining permission when publishing a person's identifiable image

You must obtain express permission from an individual to use a direct, clearly identifiable image of that person.

You should also refrain from posting any information or photos of a sensitive nature. This could include accidents, incidents or controversial behaviour.

In every instance, you need to have consent of the owner of copyright in the image.

4.9 Complying with applicable laws

Do not post or link to content that contains illegal or indecent content, including defamatory, vilifying or misleading and deceptive content.

4.10 Abiding by copyright laws

It is critical that you comply with the laws governing copyright in relation to material owned by others and Royal Life Saving Society - Australia's own copyrights and brands.

You should never quote or use more than short excerpts of someone else's work, and you should always attribute such work to the original author/source. It is good practice to link to others' work rather than reproduce it.

4.11 Discrimination, sexual harassment and bullying

The public in general, and Royal Life Saving Society - Australia's employees and members, reflect a diverse set of customs, values and points of view.

You must not post, share or otherwise engage with any material or online activity that is offensive, harassing, discriminatory, embarrassing, intimidating, sexually explicit, bullying, hateful, racist, sexist or otherwise inappropriate.

When using social media you may also be bound by Royal Life Saving Society - Australia's values and Anti-Discrimination, Harassment and Bullying Policy.

4.12 Avoiding controversial issues

Within the scope of your authorisation by Royal Life Saving Society - Australia, if you see misrepresentations made about Royal Life Saving Society - Australia in the media, you may point that out to the relevant authority in your state/territory. Always do so with respect and with the facts. If you speak about others, make sure what you say is based on fact and does not discredit or belittle that party.

4.13 Dealing with mistakes

If Royal Life Saving Society - Australia makes an error while posting on social media, be up front about the mistake and address it quickly. If you choose to modify an earlier post, make it clear that you have done so. If someone accuses Royal Life Saving Society - Australia of posting something improper (such as their copyrighted material or a defamatory comment about them), address it promptly and appropriately and if necessary, seek legal advice.

4.14 Conscientious behaviour and awareness of the consequences

Keep in mind that what you write is your responsibility, and failure to abide by these guidelines could put your membership or employment at risk.

You should always follow the terms and conditions for any third-party sites in which you participate.

4.15 Branding and intellectual property of Royal Life Saving Society – Australia

You must not use any of Royal Life Saving Society - Australia's intellectual property or imagery on your personal social media without prior approval from Royal Life Saving Society - Australia.

Royal Life Saving Society - Australia's intellectual property includes but is not limited to:

- trademarks
- logos
- slogans
- imagery which has been posted on Royal Life Saving Society - Australia official social media sites or website.

You must not create either an official or unofficial Royal Life Saving Society - Australia presence using the organisation's trademarks or name without prior approval from Royal Life Saving Society - Australia.

You must not imply that you are authorised to speak on behalf of Royal Life Saving Society - Australia unless you have been given official authorisation to do so by National Manager Events & Marketing.

Where permission has been granted to create or administer an official social media presence for Royal Life Saving Society - Australia, you must adhere to the Royal Life Saving Society - Australia Branding Guidelines.

5. POLICY BREACHES

5.1 Breaches of this policy include but are not limited to:

- Using the Royal Life Saving Society - Australia's name, motto, crest and/or logo in a way that would result in a negative impact for the organisation, clubs and/or its members.
- Posting or sharing any content that is abusive, harassing, threatening, demeaning, defamatory or libellous.
- Posting or sharing any content that includes insulting, obscene, offensive, provocative or hateful language.
- Posting or sharing any content, which if said in person during the playing of the game would result in a breach of the rules of the game.

- Posting or sharing any content that is a breach of any state or Commonwealth law.
- Posting or sharing any material to our social media channels that infringes the intellectual property rights of others.
- Posting or sharing material that brings, or risks bringing the Royal Life Saving Society - Australia, its affiliates, its sport, its officials, members or sponsors into disrepute. In this context, bringing a person or organisation into disrepute is to lower the reputation of that person or organisation in the eyes of the ordinary members of the public.

5.2 Reporting a breach

If you notice inappropriate or unlawful content online relating to the Royal Life Saving Society - Australia or any of its members, or content that may otherwise have been published in breach of this policy, you should report the circumstances immediately to the National Manager Events & Marketing.

Further information about reporting breaches:

- For a complaint about the misuse of social media relating to a match or competition that occurs either prior to, during, or after an event; report to the National Manager Events & Marketing.
- For a complaint about the misuse of social media that is general in nature and/or ongoing and does not apply to a particular game; report to the National Manager Events & Marketing.

5.3 Investigation

Alleged breaches of this social media policy may be investigated according to the Royal Life Saving Society - Australia's Social Media Policy

Where it is considered necessary, the Royal Life Saving Society - Australia may report a breach of this social media policy to police.

5.4 Disciplinary process, consequences and appeals

Depending on the circumstances breaches of this policy may be dealt with in accordance with the disciplinary procedure contained in the Royal Life Saving Society - Australia's Member Protection Policy.

Employees of Royal Life Saving Society - Australia who breach this policy may face disciplinary action up to and including termination of employment in accordance with Royal Life Saving Society - Australia Member Protection Policy or any other relevant policy.
